

ABSTRACT

This invention relates to modifying a process cell that needs periodic replacement such as the electrolysis cell shown to 5 enable quick connect/disconnect with minimal process downtime.
The claimed invention not only modifies the design of the cell but also proposes a housing with a separate compartment for the cell to isolate this from the other components of the system making it easier to replace the cell without the need to disturb 10 the other components.